The Singular (Al-Mufrad) & Gender Rules

In Arabic, every noun is either Masculine (M) or Feminine (F).

- Masculine: Usually has no special ending.
- Feminine: Usually ends with the "Ta Marbuta" (ة), which sounds like an "a" or "ah" at the end of the word.

The Dual (Al-Muthanna) - Masculine

To talk about two of something in the "White Dialect," we don't just say the number two; we change the end of the word. For masculine words, simply add the suffix "ين" (-eyn).

Formula: Singular Word + eyn = Two.

The Dual (Al-Muthanna) - Feminine

When a word ends in the feminine "ة" (Ta Marbuta), we transform that "ة" into a regular "ت" (T) and then add the "ين" (-eyn) suffix. This creates the sound "-eteyn".

Formula: Remove (ة) + Add (ت + ين)
= teyn.

Putting It All Together

Let's join!

In Arabic, adjectives (describing words) are like mirrors. If the noun is Dual, the adjective must also become Dual!

1. A small boy: Walad sagheer (Wa-lad sa-gheer)
2. Two small boys: Waladeyn sagheereyn (Wa-la-deyn sa-ghee-reyn)
3. A small girl: Bint sagheera (Bint sa-ghee-ra)
4. Two small girls: Binteyn sagheerateyn (Bin-teyn sa-ghee-ra-teyn)

Homework

1. Translation Challenge

Translate these phrases into Arabic using the -eyn or -eteyn rule:

- Two beautiful books:

- Two smart teachers (f):

- Two big houses:

Let's Do it

2. Grammar Swap

Change these singular sentences into Dual:

- طالب جديد (Ta-lib ja-deed) - "A new student" →

- قطة حلوة (Qot-ta hel-wa) - "A sweet cat" →

3. Audio Mission (Voice Task)

Record a voice note saying:

"Indi sayyarateyn wa jawwaleyn" (عندي سيارتين وجوالين)

(سيارتين وجوالين)

Translation: I have two cars and two phones.
